Myles Peck is a solid defenceman who is skilled at both end of the ice. Myles is an exceptional skater. His skating is effortless and smooth, and he has very quick feet which he always keeps moving. Myles is very fast and uses his speed to his advantage; jumping into the offence when his team is holding the offensive zone and forcing the play to the outside while defending the rush. Myles plays a very good positional game in both the offensive and defensive zones, and as well moves the puck well in both ends and through the neutral zone. Myles battles hard in front of his net, and is able to take punishment from bigger players while doing it. Coming out of his owning zone Myles sees the ice very well and makes good heads up plays. When controlling the puck Myles doesn't actually hold the puck very long. Most times he gets the puck it's off his stick within two strides. I think Myles would be much more effective for his team if he were to jump into the rush on a regular basis. His speed gives him the ability to gamble and take more risks than other defencemen.
